FROM THE REV. WILLIAM LUTHER AGASSIZ.
"The geological works of Hugh Miller have excited the greatest interest, not only among scientific men, but among the general public. The works are characterized by a depth of research, a depth of thought, a purity of feeling, and a power of argumentation, which distinguish them as one of the great contributions to the history of the earth.
The works are also distinguished by the successful combination of scientific facts with pure scientific truth."
—FROM THE REV. THOMAS CHALMERS.

"Since the death of Sir Hugh Miller, the (Hugh Miller) is the greatest Scotchman that is left."
—FROM SIR DAVID BREWSTER, LL.D., F.R.S.

"Among the most able and most original of the earth, Mr. Hugh Miller holds a lofty place, not merely from the discovery of new and undescribed organisms in the fossil recesses of the earth, but from the depth of his scientific thought, and the purity of his feelings, and the high tone of his philosophy and religion, which distinguishes all his writing. With the same depth of scientific knowledge, which has done more for Scotland during the last century, has never displayed that mental vigor, and classical taste, and intellectual culture, which mark all the writings of our author."
—FROM THE REV. WILLIAM HANNA, LL.D.

"He succeeded in placing his name in the first rank of British scientific writers and thinkers. His works are characterized by a depth of research, a depth of thought, a purity of feeling, which, taken together, not infrequently, into the loftiest of poetry."
—FROM SIR ROBERT MURCHISON, F.R.S.

Dr. Robert Murchison, in his address to the Geological Society, in 1854, said: "Hugh Miller (Dr. Robert Murchison) is, to a man, a man of the highest order of intellect, and a man of the highest order of feeling. His works are characterized by a depth of research, a depth of thought, a purity of feeling, and a power of argumentation, which distinguish them as one of the great contributions to the history of the earth."
